Civil War Trivia

Before the end of 1865, efforts were made to locate graves of men who had died during the conflict. An early tabulation showed that more than 9,000 Confederate prisoners of war were buried in Northern cemeteries. Most of these graves were marked. Yet "from some unknown cause" a relatively small graveyard near Alton, Illinois, prison was reported by Lt. Asa B. Isham of the Seventh Michigan Cavalry to hold an astonishing 662 unidentified bodies of men who fought in gray.
