Civil War Trivia

About 75 black men--some estimates place the figure as high as 100--held commissions as officers, mostly in company grades in Louisiana regiments. Nine black men attained the rank of major and one became a brevet lieutenant colonel, Dr. Alexander T. Augusta, a Canadian physician who gave up a lucrative practice in Toronto to fight for the Union. In addition, Lt. Col. William N. Reed of the 1st North Carolina Volunteers (35th U.S. Colored Infantry) was widely considered to have been "bound to both races by the ties for consanguinity."
